WHY THE ANTS ARE BLIND.

BY STUART STANTON TABER

Most strange to say there was a day When ants could see quite well.
And were not forced, as they are now,
To find their way by smell.

But even so their eyes, you know,
Were rather weak and bad;
In fact a very brilliant light Would nearly drive them mad.

Now the king of bugs put on great lugs And hired the ants to work, As ants, of course, have never been The sort of folks to shirk.

They served well, so legends tell, Except one fateful night.
And since that night they all have dwelt Benenath a fearsome blight.

It seems the king would have a fling Upon his birthday night,
And ordered out his glow worm band To flood the scene with light.

Now glow worm light is full of might And difficult to bear,
And so the ants were told to stay Inside their servants' lair.

But when the crowd cheered long and loud At such a glorious sight
The ants ran out and disobeyed By looking at the light.

But, oh, the cries of sore surprise When all were stricken blind.
And now they feel and smell about Because they wouldn't mind.

FIERCE KING OF DARK FOREST ROARS: STEALS ON ITS PREY AND KILLS IT

L is for Lion

FAMOUS LION IN HIS CAGE.

BY AUNT GERIE.

That is what the world calls the
"The king of the forest!" "The king long-maned, surly-faced, ferocious-of the forest!" looking lion!

Though this is the most famous and the fiercest animal in the zoo.
Artist Bernie and I walked right up close, stopped and talked to it! But —well, of course, there were great iron bars between the snarling, hungry creature and us.

There are three things which distinguish the lion from all other animals! These are the heavy mane, the tuft on the end of its long tail and its terrible roar. There is no other sound quite so terrifying as the deep, angry call of this big creature. Still it is very handsome, and every one who goes to the zoo remembers to pay a visit to the lions' cage.

Do you know that a lion of large size stands about three feet high and measures about 8 1-2 feet from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail?

The weight of a big lion is about 500 pounds!

The lioness is smaller than the lion and does not have a mane.
The little lions are called kittens, and when very young are often petted and played with by keepers or people who are used to being around the cages.

The lion, before it is captured.

usually found in southwestern Asia and Africa.

Where the shot of a gun is seldom heard, real, live lions are likely to be seen walking about in the daytime; sometimes in small family troops.
If they are used to be hunted, they wait till night and prowl around!

The lion cannot climb trees, but it is very nimble at scrambling around on rocks!

Its favorite way of capturing prey is to go stealthily after it; creep up upon it and surprise it, or wait beside the paths it frequents or at drinking places.

In some parts of the world where lions live, they eat deer, wild boars and other smaller animals than themselves. If they can get them, they will kill and devour cattle, goats, pigs, ponies, camels, and a human being when they have the chance!

The hunting of lions, nowadays, which is a dangerous business, is usually done at night. The hunters lie in wait at the lions' drinking place.
Various traps have been used in their capture. The most frequent of these is the pitfall.

Although such powerful creatures, used to freedom and roaming the wilderness, the lions do very well in captivity.

ACCUSES BANKERS OF MAKING FIGHT ON BONDS

situation, and in a continuance of the prosperity now attached to agricultural and industrial enterprises and general business."

For these reasons, the secretary said he hoped that the banks would not consider a suggestion from him unimportant. In many quarters there is a disposition on the part of the banks to restrict legitimate credits. There is nothing in the situation to warrant such a course. The banks should not put undue restraints on business.

Should any unusual stringency appear, the secretary said it could be easily met through resort to the $500,- 000,000 emergency currency now held in reserve which can be issued if the banks need it or by use of the resources of the treasury department or both.

In conclusion the secretary said, with emphasis, that there is not going to be any financial trouble and that the large crops now in prospect, are going to be moved without difficulty; and that the powers of the department will be exercised in their greatest amplitude for the benefit of the business interests of the country.

STATES FOREIGNERS ARE SAFE IN CHINA

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Reports to the state department Monday indicate that the Chinese republic is making advances toward suppressing the revolution there, and that the revolt is expected to collapse because it is not supported by the commercial classes in the south.

Rear Admiral Nichols reported the arrival at Kiu-Kiang Monday of his flagship, the Cruiser Saratoga, and the cruiser Cincinnati. His dispatches indicated that American and other foreigners in the Chinese summer capital were safe.
